

Assignment # 3- Expository Writing

Descriptive Writing & Story Telling

THE COMIC PITCH PRESENTATION GUIDELINES

CLO 4: Present written work orally, using clear articulation, engaging tone, and effective visual aids

Overview

This 65-75 second presentation challenges you to pitch your character and comic concept like a professional creator seeking publication. Think of it as your moment to convince a publishing house to invest in your idea!

Presentation Components (65-75 seconds total)

1. THE HOOK

- Start with an attention-grabbing statement, question, or scenario
- Make listeners curious about your character/story immediately
- Examples:
 - "What if your shadow could save your life, but demanded something in return?"
 - "In a world where memories can be traded like currency..."
 - "Meet Astra, the first human born in deep space who's returning to an Earth she's never known."

2. THE CONCEPT

- Clearly explain your character and core story
- Include genre, setting, and central conflict
- Focus on what makes your character interesting and their primary goal or challenge
- Example: "Nova is a teenage hacker with synesthesia who can see digital code as colors, giving her the ability to manipulate any technology. In near-future Tokyo, her unique gift has made her the target of both government agencies and criminal syndicates. Now she must use her abilities to uncover the truth about her missing father while staying one step ahead of those who want to exploit her talents."

3. VISUAL SAMPLE

- Display your cover art and one representative panel
- Point out 2-3 specific visual elements that enhance your story

- Explain how the visual style complements the concept
- Highlight key character design choices or artistic techniques
- Ensure materials are ready for quick, smooth presentation

4. TARGET AUDIENCE

- Identify specific demographics or interest groups
- Connect to existing fans of similar works
- Mention potential cross-media appeal if applicable
- Example: "This will appeal to teenage readers who enjoy the technological themes of 'Ready Player One' combined with the visual style of modern anime. Fans of character-driven sci-fi with diverse protagonists will especially connect with Nova's journey."

5. UNIQUE SELLING POINT

- Explain what makes your concept stand out in the marketplace
- Highlight the original aspects of your character or story
- Address how your concept fills a gap in current offerings
- End with a memorable closing line that leaves the audience wanting more

Preparation Tips

- Practice with a timer until you can consistently finish in 90 seconds
- Prioritize clarity and enthusiasm over cramming in details
- Record yourself practicing to identify areas for improvement
- Create a one-page "pitch sheet" with bullet points to help organize your thoughts
- Remember: confidence sells almost as much as content!

Evaluation Criteria

Your pitch will be evaluated on:

- Clear communication of character and concept
- Effective use of visual samples
- Understanding of target audience
- Identification of unique selling points
- Presentation delivery and timing

- Overall persuasiveness
